OF THE

FORDE KNIGHTS

and Gentlemen that have compounded for their Estates

By 42. 141

LONDON

Printed for Thomas Baskett at the signe of the Crown in St. Dunstons Church Lane. 1644.

W. S. 30

42. 141.

To those Noble persons that are concern'd, the Stationer humbly dedicates the ensuing Pages.

Restring, that he hath no desire to revive your past misfortunes, or to involve you in new ones: could he harbour a just fear, this black legend should be more gladly sacrificed to the flames, then offered to the world: He knows you too Generous, to gather solace from the sufferings of others, or else, to shew you, that your affliction is not solitary, would be a sufficient excuse to patronize this publication. 'Tis a Melancholy thing to reflect upon Crimes, but not alwaies so upon losses, since we may be necessitated to embrace the last, out of a conscience to evade the first. This book is but an Index to a greater volume, such as have been scourged by the times, use to number many such lashes as these: But 'tis not for us of the lowest sphear, to censure or moderate in those intricate contexts, which our home-divisions have engendered, our inconsidera-bleness blesse has redeem'd us from those snaring Enigma's, those Rocks, upon which the greatest Reasons and Estates have dash'd and perished: you your selves best know your own engagements: But in (These) this may be received as a sober truth, that he happily consults his Treasure, who honestly loses, or piously expends it; yea more, every drop of blood that is shed in a good cause, shall Commence a Ruby in heaven.

The meanest of those that serve and honour you,

T. D.
